Before first use

Unpack all parts and remove any packaging material. No assembly is required and no batteries are needed — the vehicle is ready to play with straight from the box. Check that the sprinkler arm moves freely before first use.

How to use it

1. Fill the tank

Open the cap on top of the rear tank and fill with clean water. Do not overfill — leave an air gap below the cap. The air gap is what the pump pressurises, so the tank must not be filled to the top.

2. Close the tank firmly

Screw the cap down tight. If it is not sealed properly the tank will not hold pressure and no water will come out.

3. Pump up the pressure

Work the pump cylinder up and down several times. This pressurises the air above the water, which is what pushes the water out when the lever is opened.

4. Position the sprinkler arm

The sprinkler arm adjusts both sideways and up or down. Set it to point where the water should go. Move it gently; do not force it past its stop.

5. Flip the lever to spray

Flip the lever on the tank. The pressure pushes water through the hose system to the sprinkler arm and out onto the plants. Return the lever to stop the flow. As the tank empties the spray weakens — pump the cylinder again to build the pressure back up.

6. Steer and drive

The VarioCar has articulated steering — the front and rear sections pivot against each other, so it turns in a tight circle like the real municipal vehicle.

After play and cleaning

Open the lever to release any remaining pressure before opening the cap. Empty the tank completely after every session, then leave the cap off so the tank can air dry inside. Wipe the outside with a damp cloth. Do not put the vehicle in a dishwasher, and do not leave it in direct sun for long periods.
